

Publication Ethics Statement

1. The editors and editorial board of Rayburn Journal are entitled to examine and decide upon the nature and content of manuscripts to be published. They are, however, to take into account the comments and advices of the manuscript reviewers before taking the final decision.
2. Manuscript reviewers are selected based on the discipline expertise and intellectual merit.
3. The editors and editorial board ensures that the information related to blind-peer review is kept confidential, and the identities of the reviewers and authors are to be protected at all cost.
4. Authors should submit only their original work.
5. Manipulation of data, act of fraudulence, plagiarism, and any sort of unethical behavior is not entertained by the editors and the editorial board.
6. Manuscripts are neither submitted nor published elsewhere.
7. Intellectual property and copyrights are reserved by the journal publisher.
8. It is ensured that the publisher provides all supports to the development of the journal. The publisher does not interfere with or influence the decision of the editorial board in any form whatsoever.
